Counseling

We were more than blessed to have Jeff as our counselor and coach when three counselors before him had given up on our marriage being reconcilable. He is discerning and wise, tenacious and challenging, and believes that God is the Great Counselor and can work miracles. He pushed us to believe God, try new things and work harder than we ever had, giving us skills and tools to reconcile our own marriage. We are living proof that there is always hope when God is in the mix. God used Jeff to show us the way when all others thought there was no way.

Jeff Williams has given more than just his time to helping marriages to heal. His entire heart is captured in it. His reliance on sound biblical knowledge and values has grounded our marriage and spiritual life with a solid foundation that can be built upon for years. We believe that God is using Jeff and his gifts to reconstruct brokenness and point people to a God who can restore hearts and give renewed hope for the future.

I have benefitted personally and professionally from Jeff's counseling skills. He helped several of our family members navigate successfully through perplexing life challenges that left us all in a better place. As a pastor I found Jeff to be a trusted "go-to referral resource", whether seeking input on struggling members or in suggesting his services to those beyond my own scope of expertise. His balance of grace and truth in facilitating client growth is exceptional, accurately reflecting the name of the counseling service he founded.

Jeff Williams is an amazing counselor...and human being. Jeff knows how to speak the truth and do it in love. I've known Jeff for many years in several different settings. His wisdom and ability to see through to the core of emotional and spiritual issues is a true gift from God. I highly endorse Jeff Williams as an effective counselor.

Marriage Coaching

I have confidently referred challenging couples to Jeff and Jill for marriage coaching. As both a professional coach and a licensed professional counselor myself, I appreciate and respect the keen insight, depth of experience, and professionalism that Jeff brings to helping relationships. I highly recommend him to you as both coach and counselor!

Jeff and Jill give themselves wholly and fully to likely the biggest breakdown of our society, the family and the bond and partnership of marriage. They have a safety about them, but also a no-compromise approach that will push people to excellence and take ownership. They stay within the boundaries of personal responsibility that those in trouble need to have and take. No one should care more for someone's issues/problems than those in it. They also by raising a high bar and commitment to excellence will give folks the opportunity to move well beyond ground zero, but to a place of thriving. They do the basic tenets in their own lives: love, model, coach!

From the very first tele-session we learned simple but profound relationship skills. The principles are so easily applied...In our own relationship, we have been able to immediately use each of the skills with encouraging results. Historically our relationship has been stormy (but)...after implementing techniques as you have taught and demonstrated, we finally have hope of a more peaceful approach to conflict resolution...we are finding that if we drop back into our old patterns the discussions quickly heat up, but as we catch ourselves and begin to apply our new skills conversations promptly calm and become more productive. Again, this is simple, but so profound. Thank you,

Christian Leadership and Life Coaching

Jeff is a collaborator at heart. He and his wife, Jill, have been used by God in Clark County to rally the Body of Christ around marriage and family in an unprecedented way. It has been a pleasure to work with them and I am excited they are being called to build Clark County as a Community of God.

In just a few sessions, Jeff has enabled me to move forward in some key ministry areas that I have been bogged down in for years. Coaching has given me a clarity and focus to my ministry that is energizing and refreshing. Jeff is one of the best. I am amazed at how quickly Jeff has become a friend and ally whose coaching has brought out the best in me as a ministry leader, husband, and father.

GRACE & TRUTH

Jeff Williams' work with me has been transformational over the last year and a half. His intuition, skill, experience, self-discipline, prophetic gifts, way with words, and genuine loving care make him a huge asset to me. As my coach Jeff has confidently guided me with "powerful questions" helping me think through significant leadership challenges and embrace lasting personal change in how I lead and serve my congregation. I rely on his insights and the abundance of useful resources he makes available to me. I have benefited as much from the wonderful care he shows me as I have from the wonderful example he sets, which inspires me in caring for others. If you have opportunity to benefit from Jeff's influence, by all means USE IT.

Jeff Williams has a God given passion for seeing men and women set free to walk forgiven and to reach their potential relationally and in every aspect of life. That passion coupled with Jeff's fine tuned coaching skills was greatly used by God as a catalyst for change in my life. He helped me overcome a lifelong problem of procrastination, and through coaching helped me bring focus to my ministry skills. His skill in listening, then asking powerful questions led me to choose action steps that have uncovered the hidden best in me. Through coaching, Jeff helped me safely walk through a mine field of transition in my professional life. If your desire is to soar to new heights, allow this eagle help you learn to fly!

I strongly recommend Jeff Williams as a coach. I have had Jeff as my personal coach and he has helped me tremendously in clarifying, setting, and reaching goals. He has also been helpful in helping bring focus and clarity in defining and prioritizing what issues to work on. His insight and perception have been very valuable to me in this coaching process.

Jeff is an expert on relational issues and can quickly uncover hindrances to unity and discern solutions that lead to resolution. He will both relentlessly challenge you toward righteousness in relationship, even while graciously supporting you through what's necessary to achieve it! I've seen him calm turbulent situations, mediate impossible ones, and quickly discover deceptions that underlie divisiveness.

Jeff Williams has mastered the skill of coaching toward discovery, ownership and change. He has repeatedly demonstrated the remarkable ability to help me clear the clutter of emotion and circumstances to better understand where I am, where I want to go, and what steps I need to take to get there. He helps me to see me more clearly and approach my challenges in healthy and manageable ways.
